ABOUT ME

My name's Jose Luis Y. Mendoza, and I'm a driven individual. I take actions that will assist me achieve right now. I imagine all the possible outcomes of my success. One of the things I do is make plans for the future. Being ambitious gives me the drive to do tasks with grace. Consequently, all of my goals are being envisioned. Subsequently, every ambitions that I have is being visualize. Every time that I visualize, it puts a smile on my face because it feels to me I am close to achieving it. Being a visionary helps me become motivated to do everything that I need to do. As a result, I am persistent through all my actions. Despite the difficulty, I always give it my all to complete it. This is because I feel relieved after I complete a task that required me to exert extra effort. Sometimes, though, I find it difficult to complete a task. Making decisions is the one I'm struggling with. I am indecisive sometimes because I think about the outcomes when I choose with that kind of decision. There are a lot of factors that makes me indecisive. The one major thing is FOMO or fear of missing out. I have this kind of problem but they are mostly trivial things. Despite this, I am a dependable person. You can count on me on things like favors or tasks. I always to the best of my effort to make sure that everyone can count on me. Especially that I am in college, there are a lot of group work that needs to be done on time. I make sure that the group that I am in will be grateful that there is no need to for them to tell me what to do, I just tell them what I will do and if they agree to it, I will do it gladly and on time.
